RANDGÄNGER

(Life off Limits)

A film by Renate Woltron

feature film, Austria/Germany 2012

Four friends - Life - No compromise!

Who or what is a "Randgänger" (fringe-goer)? This question is pursued by director Renate Woltron in her new feature film.

Everything is a matter of perspective. Often, it is solely the perspective that makes something normal or abnormal, reasonable or crazy, logical or absurd.

The plot unfolds around four main protagonists: a heterosexual hairdresser, who is leading a seemingly normal life with his wife and children, an exhibitionist deacon, a latent homosexual educator and a disillusioned director of documentary films who is constantly in conflict with her cameraman.

Are these four characters "Randgänger" or rather ordinary people who cross each others paths: the conservative couple with his supposedly well-behaved daughter, the respectable neighbours, the shy teacher, the hairdresser's friendly apprentice, the well-off parents or the Italian pop singer?

Above all is a friendship not often found in this form.

And because everything in this movie is normal or not normal, it is also an involuntary comedy. Because nothing and no one is entirely serious or funny.
